PROFILE

I have and always will be a creative personality, seeking out ways to utilise my skills and passion for aesthetic design, which led me toward undertaking a degree in Graphic and Web Design. My time at University has given me the experience of working within a team, as well as time management and working to a deadline while under pressure. I have had to liaise with tutors and clients alike, taking into account their opinions and constructive criticism from which I move forward and develop. Additionally, I have learnt to effectively evolve an idea from the initial thought to the final outcome without shying away from more ambitious projects.

Additionally, the time I have spent in a working environment has given me a good grounding in how to work within a professional business.

More recently, I have begun to design and print my own t-shirts in my own time. This has led me into investigating taking up a course in screen-printing at a local workshop which I hope will help extend my skills in the medium. I also enjoy writing, painting, drawing as well as digital based illustrations.
